Conclusions

- The rates for coherent nuclear interactions at RHIC will be high.

- Many interesting physics topics can be studied in two-photon and photonuclear interactions.

- The STAR detector is well suited to study these interactions (good geometrical coverage, excellent, multi-level trigger).

- The experimental feasibility has been demonstrated through simulations of all known sources of background.